Corn Duke, of Richmond, and Berties Merritt, of Iowa.

Spooks, pumpkins and other Hallowe'en adjuncts were abundantly in evidence. Among those to whom the fates were propilious were Misses Elizabeth Penfleton, Corn Duke, Bertie Merritt, Claric Cox, Freida Quarles, Virginia Goodman, of Louisa; Mary Anderson, Evelyn Trigg, of Abinsdom, Mury Hawes Tyler, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Rose Carter; Messrs. J. C. Cox, F. H. Cox, Jordan, Kerr, Leake, Shirley, Carter, Clarence Carter, Charles K. Pendleton, Jr., C. A. Brown and E. B. Washington, of Hichmond.

The spooks did not assemble until a aire hour, so the crowd was correspondingly late in dispersing, after a very merry time, much of which was spent in the reading of future destinies.

At the Soldiers' Home.

At the Soldiers' Home.

The ladies of the Soldiers' Home committee desire to express their thanks and appreciation, to Mr. S. H. Desch and Mr. George F. Shaver for the delightful entertainment which they gave at the Soldiers' Home on Friday night.

Mrs. Burton Mountcastle took the hearts of the veterans and the audience by storm with her charming recitations. It is to be hoped that other evenings projected for this series of entertainments will be as happy and enjoyable as this proved to all present. The ladies feel that they cannot estimate too highly the pleasure bestowed on all concerned by Messrs, Desch and Shaver.

Ratio of Cowardice Shown to Be 3 1-2 to 1 in Favor of Female

Professor William B. Balley, of Yale, has brought out some interesting facts based on 29,344 cases of suicide, covering the period from 1897 to 1901. Using the 2,213 females found life intolerable, and despairing of mending, ended it. This leaves the ratio of cowardice three and one-half to one in favor of feminine courage. Almost two-thirds of the suicides,
